French Fellow is supported in part by the German Marshall Fund of the United States and the Franco American Commission for Educational Exchange.

Each year, Fellows begin the Program with a month-long orientation that includes meetings with Representatives and Senators, congressional staffs, political scientists, journalists, lobbyists, and government administrators. At the same time, Fellows begin exploring options for themselves, and usually begin work in early December. In April, Fellows are encouraged to seek new assignments on the other side of the legislature, giving them the opportunity to become familiar with both the House and Senate. Seminars are held throughout the Fellowship year, which concludes in mid-August. Fellows are each entitled to make one visit to the home district of the member for which they work.

Lisa Pullen Foust is the Director of the Congressional Fellowship Program. Christopher J. Deering, Associate Professor at The George Washington University, is Academic Director for the Program.

The CFP Advisory Committee creates policy and provides direction for the program. Members of the Advisory Committee are:

Norman J. Ornstein, American Enterprise Institute, Chair
